NATURAL MINERAL WATER

Natural Nordic MINERAL water is a delicious and smooth tasting water from the Nornir source in Denmark.

The Nornir source lies 117 meters under the ground surface well protected in between layers of sand and clay. Several aquifers were originally formed in the subsoil between 15 and 20 million years ago and the water from the source is more than 1000 year old. The water is well balanced natural mineral water and characterised as soft natural mineral water with a low content of sodium and chloride.

During its long journey of percolating down through sand and clay, the water has been purified and infused with minerals over the course of two thousand years, leaving only the purest, natural mineral water. The quality of the water meets the requirements of WHO's guidelines from 2004.

The Nornir source appear in a layer of sand known as the Bastrup sand. The Bastrup sand was deposited by a large river system approximately 15 to 20 million years ago and has since been gradually covered by clay and additional layers of sand throughout the slow birth of Denmark as it appears today. The many layers protect the water and adds valuable minerals to it.
